How does a place taste, really? The great thing about wine is it varies in taste according to where it comes from. The world's finest wines have a marked provenance of both aroma and taste – a combination of the locality of cultivation, craftsmanship and culture. Wines impossible to imitate. Wines with an address.

Come with us to Barolo, Central Otago, Chinon, Etna, Madeira, Meursault, Mosel, Saint-Joseph, Sauternes and Vouvray, with DN's wine writer Alf Tumble as guide.

We visit ten fascinating wine regions and receive a wealth of personal tips in the form of favourite bottles, producers and food combinations. Travelling to the places where grapes are cultivated often gives us the key to understanding local wines. But it works almost as well at home in the kitchen, with a glass in one's hand. Wine with an address is enjoyed to its best advantage with food from the same street.
