This is a book about modern craft and about how crafting can make a difference. It can influence ways of thinking, change world economies – or even change the world. At least there is a new wave of creators out there who claim that this is the case.

With the help of yarn, needle and thread, creators such as yarn bombers, craftivists and anarchy embroiderers are changing our society. Guerilla Crafts tells the story of Stitch'n'bitch, yarn bombing, reverse graffiti, craftivism, DIY, anarchy embroidery and much more.

You can become a craftivist yourself with the help of the 5 projects included in this book. Get going! Yarn storm, make your own seed bomb, embroider, or, manifest your opinions in your own way!

About the Author

Frida Arnqvist Engström is a journalist and blogger. She has observed the craft world since 2005 and, since 2008, has written about crafts, handwork, art, DIY, durability, and politics in her blog, Kurbits.nu. The blog is a forum for examining and discussing the ways old techniques and traditions can be interpreted and adapted for new, contemporary functions, products, and expressions. Frida also lectures on these subjects.
